Mark Your Calendars: AMCP to Hold First Health Disparities Summit June 9

To advance AMCP's work on addressing health disparities, AMCP will engage in a series of activities in 2022 that explore what managed care pharmacy can do to close medication gaps. In addition to a Partnership Forum and webinars, AMCP will host a summit that explores disease states that disproportionately impact communities of color and explore health inequity in the current drug development. The event is free to AMCP members.

Consequences of Putting a Band-Aid on a Virus

In an effort to slow the spread of COVID-19, the Biden-Harris Administration recently required health plans to cover the cost of over-the-counter at-home tests, essentially making them "free" for the majority of Americans. While this endeavor is well-intentioned, it is not without its flaws. AMCP CEO, Susan Cantrell, MHL, RPh, CAE, discusses those flaws in her latest blog post.
